Dear Jimmy,

Every thing here is so fabulous I can't begin to tell about it. We are staying in the most deluxe hotel here and the surf is wild and our room is the very best right out on the water on the 5th floor with sliding glass doors out to our lanai. Every thing is elegant. The show in the dining room tonight was great, all hula dancers and just the greatest entertainment. Dad has a car but I think I will start taking him to work, at least some of the time, but for right now there is so much to see and do right at the hotel.

Dad was sent here to see how their job is coming on the new airport they are building. He said all the men are scared of him and they tell all different stories about what they are doing and he has to try to figure out if the job is being done in the best and right way.

It is hot here but our room is air-conditioned and it is fun to sit out on the lanai and watch the surf. It bays so hard against the coral reef and lava rock that it will kill me to sleep tonight. A tidal wave was predicted but I guess it won't hit here. I don't care if it does. When we left Honolulu, the plane stopped at Maui first before landing at Kona.

More later.

Love,
Mom.
